"The writer is evidently a man of good natural abilities and education."

[It is well adapted for general perusal, and will be deservedly popular."

It is written in a clear and simple style, giving evident proof in every page of its authenticity."

[Montreal Com. Advectiser.]

"The narrative is a very interesting one, and it is written in a fresh, genial style, which makes one sorry to get to the end of the volume."

[New-Bedfurd Mercury.]

"It is a better account of the men that scheeved those victories."

"It is a better account of the men that scheved those victories, which gave an American renown to the Medican war, than any book we have yet read. We have before us manuscript fournals by two soldiers, and in tone and narration they correspond with many of the opinions expressed by the author of the book before us."

CRITICAL SOTICES OF THE PRIES.

'It is a work of uncommon interest, written in a spirit of chee malness and typerity, and abounds with information of great value."

"Though Mrs. Meredith's book be characterized as cheerful, it is not because the nine years to which it is devoted were a period of plenty and prosperity. Her losses and crosses in settling seem to have been almost as sumerons as those of another lady Colsinst, whose "Roughing in in the Bind" was so and and dispiriting a book; but she touches on them with a lighter pen tism the one hed by Mrs. Moodie. Her catalogue of the contents and expandities of a Basmannan garder and orchard is rich in color and variety. Spring our authoress manages to conjure up—ro vasion—but absolutely a reality, of home and comfort, and mare the best of her calle, with that pertinations good sense and cheerfulness which—whether they be due to temperament or to philosophy—are worth many's a narget in the wild places of the carth."

"A erry entertaining work of much literary ment; containing raishle information and graphic and pleasing pictures of the country."

"The marrative is at once romantic, entertaining and instructive. There is no affected nonsense in the style, but all the scenes are vividly portrayed, at more giving the reader the greatest confidence in their facility."

"The proof of our critical appreciation of this book will be found in LOST ONE OF SCIO.

rpirit of style."

"As a literary performance, the book has the most impositional emerit, while the information it conveys, and the cheerful views of life it contains, will commend it to a wide persual."

"Mrs. Meredith's education, travels and personal sequentiance with the country, challe her to describe it well, and slein as done it. Her sacteles are lively, attractive, and, to all appearance, trathin."

"We wish the book an extensive sale. They Family Journal, having acided it to their library."

"I he Authories seems well fitted for her task, and, with abundance of detail, gives graphing pictures of various experiences at many points.

"Mrs. Merecith's style is very happy, and the details of Australia life are invested with a wordermi charm."

"It is not for a moment to be doubted, we think, that in this volume a contribution has been made to the clearness and accuracy of Sinkspearse text by far the most important of any offered or attempted since Sinkspearse lived and wrote." [London Examiner, Jan. 29, 1833, "We think we may challenge at yone to look at the attentions which they suggest, and not at once perceive that they recommend themselves to adoption by that surest of all criticisms, the judgment of common sense. Like all other truths when once put before us, we are astonished how these things could so long have missed our grasp. We have here, in all probability, a genuine restoration of Sinkspears's language, in at least a thousand piaces, in which he has hitherto been manuferstood."
